RELIEF DIRECTOR GIVEN AUTHORITY THROUGH NEW LAW

May Inquire Into Hidden Bank Accounts of Those On Relief

UNDER THE WEISS BILL

Banks Required to Disclose Accounts Upon Request of Relief Director

HARRISBURG, Apr. 20.—(INS).—Relief Director Robert L. Johnson today held authority from a new law to inquire into any hidden bank accounts or other securities possessed by families on relief.

The authority was bestowed when Gov. George H. Earle approved the Weiss bill requiring banks, upon the request of the Relief Director, to disclose any accounts of families receiving relief. Johnson has estimated that five per cent. or more than 20,000 families getting nearly $1,000,000 relief monthly, should not be receiving aid.

Governor Earle also signed seven other bills including the Schrock-Westrick bill providing for splitting up the unreturned balance in the fire insurance tax fund among firemen's relief pension and retirement funds. In signing the bill, Governor Earle pointed out that the division cannot be made until transferred money diverted for relief is returned to the fund.

Other bills signed were: Harris, providing that Pittsburgh voters sign their name when voting, to check against their registration card signature.

Weidemann, validating and providing for collection of certain local assessments for municipal improvements.

Smith, revising the act permitting borrowing by farming concerns.

Smith, permitting co-operatives to give chattel mortgages.

Kinney, validating contracts made by councils of third class cities.

Weidemann, empowering counties to acquire land for recreation parks and bridge paths.

Need Physician's Training For Duties of Coroner

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 20.—In an address to members of the Doayapo Club, Dr. John J. Sweeney, coroner of Bucks County, declared that a coroner should be a physician because a layman simply relies on what someone tells him.

"The demands of investigations which must be given in court and those made by the state are such that a layman is not able to fulfill the office with the same ability.

The coroner explained that Bucks county does not have a county physician on its payroll but that he serves in a double capacity—as coroner and the county physician, both of whom are paid by fees.

"The Coroner should be an enlightened and trained physician so that he can testify in court. If he is not a physician often the county will be compelled to hire an expert to substantiate his testimony. In court a smart lawyer is never interested in finding out what you do know, but how much you don't know," said Coroner Sweeney.

"The State, too, demands explicit diagnosis in homicide, suicide, accidental and sudden deaths. The job of Coroner in Bucks county is not a salary job but a fee job contrary to most people's idea. Laymen are not so familiar with pronouncing a person dead. According to law, a man is not dead legally and officially until he is pronounced so by a physician.

Speaking of the large number of inquests, which follow the death of someone in an automobile accident, Dr. Sweeney stated that he has always tried to be fair and square in all automobile cases because he drives a car himself and can appreciate the driver's point of view.

"The time should come—and will—when every man who owns a car will be compelled to carry insurance," Dr. Sweeney stated.

Reporting for the Doayapo Club boys' week committee, George Dorfner, as chairman, pleaded for better support from the club. "We have about $90 and need about $110 more. You fellows must get out and raise more money if we are to put the event over in a successful way."

Charles Siegler and Walter Phillips, who were elected members of the board of directors, will fill vacancies left by Theodore Gross, of Danboro, and W. Lester Trauch.

ONLY 300 RESPONDED TO GOVERNOR'S PLEA

Indulged in Most Disgraceful Scene Ever Witnessed In Senate

MOSTLY JOB SEEKERS

HARRISBURG, Apr. 20.—Governor Earle caused thousands of postcards sent out, mostly to job-hunters and organizations of Democratic women, trying to drum up a big demonstration at the Capitol last Monday night to support his tax program. He got, at all told, about 300 who indulged in just about as disgraceful scenes as the State Senate has ever witnessed.

At the Capitol they were met by almost 2,000 Republican men and women from Montgomery county, who had come by special train to see their new Senator, Theodore Lane Bean, and their new Representative, Edwin C. Winner, take the oath of office. The Montgomery county crowd was in merry mood, in sharp contrast with the sour-faced boosters of the Governor's tax program, and added a note of color and cheer, with their flags and bands, to the otherwise drab atmosphere of a great Democratic demonstration that failed to materialize.

Typical of the vigor with which newspapers are now denouncing the Governor's stubborn attitude is the comment of the Beaver Daily Times. "Governor Earle, goaded by Washington," says the Times, "continues to whine like a spanked baby because he can't have everything HIS way. He'll get over it before the session ends. And he'll be wiser when he does. He knows now, what he should have known at the beginning—that he was elected Governor only, not Governor and Legislature. He probably knows by this time, too, that our State government has three separate and distinct branches, and that the function of each is well defined. His job is very clearly that of executive, enforcement of the laws, NOT to make them. He knows, too, that the Washington administration will go to any extreme to brow-beat, bull-doze and drive Pennsylvania into line with the new deal. Washington politicians would rather do that with Pennsylvania now than with any other state in the union. It would simplify things a lot for the new deal in 1936.

"The sooner the Governor recognizes these facts the better it will be for him and for the people of this state. When he starts listening more to the people of his own state and less to Washington, he will begin to get somewhere with a tax program that will be within reason and that will meet the urgent needs of the hungry and distressed.

"Why should the Governor talk so much about HIS tax program anyway? The constitution says that all revenue bills shall originate in the House, but the Senate shall have power to amend as in other matters. Instead of trying to cater to Washington, the Governor should ask the House at once to formulate a tax program that the people of the state will approve, at least temporarily."

Six Killed in Auto Crash

Salisbury, Md., Apr. 20.—Six persons were killed instantly today when the car in which they were riding crashed into the rear of a parked truck in the hamlet of Tunnelville. The dead were: Thaddeus Dykes, 25, driver of the car; Morris Dykes, 22, his brother and Wisepeart Mumford, 17, all of Salisbury; Violet Templeton, 17; Edith Wiley, 17; and Agnes Taylor, all of Delmar, Del., a tiny village on the Maryland-Delaware line.

With the exception of Miss Taylor, who succumbed an hour after the crash, all were dead when extricated from the wreckage.

The crash was so terrific it awakened virtually every resident of Powellville. Both vehicles were demolished. Corporal C. E. Minnick of the State Police said the automobile in which the young people were joy-riding, crashed while driving at a 70-mile-an-hour clip and failed to make a curve in the street. Corporal Minnick revealed a small quantity of liquor was found in the automobile and that Dykes' driver's license had been revoked recently by the Motor Vehicle Commission.

RELIGIOUS FANATICS TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

Three Members of a Colored Family Believed To Be Mentally Deranged

WILL BE EXAMINED

TINICUM, Apr. 20.—Three colored folks believed to be religious fanatics were taken into custody today and are being held awaiting determination of authorities as to what action is to be taken.

The three taken by the officers are Solomon Jones, Sr., 53, Solomon Jones, Jr., 29, and Kathryn Jones, 23, of Tinicum township. They are Negroes. Kathryn Jones is a graduate of Doylestown high school.

The Jones family are members of a religious cult that teaches the world must be saved before "the end," which is scheduled, they say, for June 13th. They were taken into custody shortly before noon yesterday by three officers of the Doylestown sub-station of State Police and Constable A. R. Atkinson.

Corporal John Stewart and Troopers Davey and Farrell, together with Constable Atkinson, came to Tinicum after receiving complaints from neighbors that a group of people were running around the field naked. When the officers arrived, the Joneses were dressed, but two of them, Junior and Kathryn, were found standing against a tree at High Rock, with their hands above their heads and their eyes closed as if in prayer.

In the Jones' farm house some distance away, the officers found Solomon Jones, Sr., and his wife, Mrs. Jones, who were sitting on the porch.

CHURCH CELEBRATION TO BE HELD TUESDAY

Will Occur in Bristol for The First Time, It Is Stated

AT ST. ANN'S CHURCH

The celebration of "Our Lady of Grace" will occur in Bristol for the first time on Tuesday next, when it is estimated that 700 parishoners of St. Ann's Roman Catholic Church will participate in a high mass and procession.

The celebration of "Our Lady of Grace" was conducted for years by priests and parishoners of the congregation of Our Lady of Good Counsel, Christian street, Philadelphia. The celebration was sponsored by communicants of that church who had originally come from the Province of Spezzano, Italy. The Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel was closed last year, and a desire was expressed by members of St. Ann's Church who came from the Province of Spezzano to sponsor a similar service. Plans were made, and the celebration is to occur on the Tuesday following Easter Sunday. The Rev. Father Marcello Romagnolo states there are about 100 families connected with St. Ann's parish who came from Spezzano Province. It is estimated there will be at least 700 in the procession, with the localities being augmented by a group from the closed Philadelphia Church.

High Mass will be said at 10 a. m., and at 11 the procession will occur, the route being from the church down Penn. street, to Franklin, Wood, Lafayette, Washington and the highway to the church. A band from Philadelphia will accompany the group in the procession, playing national hymns. Students from St. Ann's Church will participate. The ceremonies are expected to conclude at about 12.30.

The high mass will be said by the Rev. Father Rocca, assisted by the Rev. Fr. Romagnolo and the Rev. Fr. Albert.

Amelia Earhart Seeks New Laurels to Add to Records

LOS ANGELES, Apr. 20.—(INS).—Roaring down the coast of Mexico toward Mazatlan, on a nonstop flight to Mexico City, Amelia Earhart Putnam, conqueror of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans today was seeking to add new aviation laurels to her record.

The touselled-haired flyer shot her high-winged Lockheed Vega monoplane into the air at Union Air Terminal yesterday, after announcing that while speed would be a secondary matter in her flight, she expected to reach Mexico City within 12 hours.

Miss Earhart said she expected to send her 550-horsepowered Wasp-motored plane through the air at a speed of between 140 and 150 miles per hour during the flight, which is 1,700 miles, on the course she is traveling.

Tests of a new radio compass which was installed in the plane yesterday by Paul Mantz, who prepared Miss Earhart's ship for its recent trans-Pacific solo flight, were the primary reason for the dash, the flyer said.

The new compass, it was said, was invented by William P. Lear and Miss Tarhart said she is making the tests at the request of the United States Department of Commerce.

CLEAN-UP WEEK TO BE OBSERVED HERE BEGINNING MONDAY

Burgess Anderson Requests All Residents to Co-operate in Movement

CLEAN ALL PREMISES

Rid Cellars and Attics of Winter's Accumulation of Debris

At the suggestion of Clifford L. Anderson, Burgess, Bristol will join in the state-wide clean-up week which begins Monday, April 22nd, and ends the following Saturday.

Residents here are appealed to, to join in this annual effort to rid Bristol of all sources of contagion and infection and breeding places of disease.

Beginning Monday every resident here is urged to clear their premises of all accumulated debris and place it where the authorized collector will have easy access to it.

"Clean out cellars, attics, store-rooms and every other place where rubbish has accumulated. Empty all cans, boxes and other containers of ashes and rubbish. Place all debris along the route of the authorized collector in the manner as prescribed by the borough ordinance.

Clean all gutters and ditches on premises and drain them free of water. Rid your property of old papers and junk and use time freely in disinfecting drains and cesspools.

Rake up lawns and free them of brush and leaves. Exercise great caution in burning rubbish, so that fire will not spread to buildings and create a fire hazard.

The success of the plan is dependent upon the residents here. The borough garbage collector and the ash and rubbish collector will haul away free all debris if it is properly placed along their route. There is no reason why dirt should be permitted to accumulate on any property here in Bristol.

With the usual accumulation of winter's debris, the necessity of its prompt removal from the health standpoint is apparent. Conditions that foster fly-breeding are definitely menacing to the welfare of all citizens, and particularly children.

Flies thrive in dirt. There is nothing they like better. They breed in yards, on plots of ground, and on farms where decaying vegetable and animal matter and other fly-attracting substances have been permitted to pile up.

Swat-the-fly campaigns have done more to educate the public on this insect hazard than has any other one activity. Both in killing flies that invade the home, and in the construction of barriers to stop them before they get there, this definite aggression against the winged disease-spreader has been, and will continue to be, of inestimable value.

However, it is essential that conditions be immediately removed that represent ideal fly-breeding spots. It is better to remove the conditions that breed them than to swat them after they are here.

Out-of-the-way storage rooms, cellars, attics, closets and all places where materials not in daily use are kept, are undoubtedly dust catchers and perhaps contributory fire hazards. These places should be inspected during the week as to the possible presence of trash, oily rags, waste paper or other inflammable material.

During next week it is suggested plans be laid for intensive campaigning against flies. General cleaning regulations and methods, and proper screening and garbage disposal will aid greatly in reducing this menace. Fire losses take more toll in property damage and lives than the activities of gangsters and criminals. The people take measures to protect themselves against criminal activity. Why not apply the same principle to the solution of our fire waste problem, which can be definitely controlled by a little care and forethought?

Fire is an indispensable agency. If kept under control, fire serves constructively; but if not confined to proper uses, it is disastrous and

SATURDAY, APRIL 20, 1935

THE MESSAGE OF EASTER

Strange doctrines have been builded upon a foundation of faith and men have lived by them and died for them. Great deeds have been done for faith's sake and wise things spoken by its inspiration. Yet the faith, which is "the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen," cannot sustain alone the courageous and confident spirit. Man needs some certainties on which to found his faith. He must renew his faith, at times, by means of new certainties.

Herein lies the enduring significance of the coming of Spring, known to all times and peoples without necessity of teaching or argument. By every appearance the long Winter denies the miracle of enduring life. It is leafless, colorless and cheerless. Death is in its bitter cold, its stormy strife of wind and rain. Many ancient legends of gods and heroes tell of its triumph over life and heat and happiness. There is the tale of Persephone doomed to wander half the year in the dread dark of the underworld. There is the Norse legend of Baldur, bright son of Odin, slain by craft in the twilight of the gods.

I heard a voice that cried,
"Baldur the Beautiful
Is dead, is dead!"
And through the misty air
Passed like the mournful cry
Of sunward-sailing cranes.

These are plain parables of the most familiar phenomenon in human experience—the fading of Summer into the twilight of Autumn and the cold night of Winter. Yet since the world began the perennial rebirth of Spring has proved them false. With every Easter season, no matter by what name it has been known, has come comforting assurance of life outlasting death, of beauty born again and the cheerless devastation wrought by long Winter.

Therefore, the hearts of men were ready and eager to believe in the miracle of Easter morning, nearly twenty centuries ago, when one in white raiment told the women at the sepulcher, "He is not here, for He is risen, as He said. And go quickly, and tell His disciples that He is risen from the dead." The certainty and reassurance of that moment became the foundation stone of Christian faith and doctrine. The story of simple folk who came "as it began to be dawn," hoping and believing, yet troubled by doubt and grief, is the gospel of Good Friday and of its fulfillment in the mystery and glory of the resurrection. Theirs is the testimony of witnesses who saw and heard. That, in truth, is the teaching of all the Gospels, which are not written in the spirit of prophecy but as a record of human experience. Centuries of doubt and discussion have not shaken their testimony, but strengthened it by the simple faith and dedicated lives of uncounted millions who have believed that a Saviour was born into the world and lived and talked with men. "Go quickly and tell His disciples," said the angel at the tomb. Today their tale is told again in a world far distant and different from their own, yet in words that the wise and simple in heart may equally understand.

Threatening to leave the film, Maurice Chevalier says that roles recently given him have not helped his popularity. It seems the last was that of a banker.

BEHIND THE SCENES AT HARRISBURG

HARRISBURG, Apr. 20—Republican State Chairman M. Harvey Taylor and Democratic State Chairman David Lawrence were pitted against each other in the Montgomery county elections of last week—and the Democratic chairman got a licking.

Taylor spent a full week in Montgomery county, taking full responsibility for the conduct of the campaign which brought all factions of the party together. Lawrence sent Governor Earle and two cabinet members who reside in Montgomery, in addition to other cabinet members, into the district to campaign for the Democrats. Taylor led off by making the Democratic tax program the issue. Lawrence took up the challenge. Lawrence threw all the patronage he could command and a lot of money into the struggle.

Taylor's part in the campaign is set forth in a telegram received from Theodore Lane Bean, the winning Republican candidate for the Senate, saying:

"Congratulations, Mr. Chairman, upon your wonderful victory in Montgomery. This is not a personal victory for me. This is a substantial victory for the Republican party throughout the whole State. Without your marvelous co-operation, leadership and personal contact with us here in this county this splendid result could never have been accomplished."

Newspapers throughout the State regard the Montgomery elections, in which Bean was elected to the Senate by more than 16,000 majority and Edwin Winner, Republican, to the House by more than 9,000, as an "utter repudiation of the Democratic tax program" and say it is now time for the Governor to seek a compromise.

The Philadelphia Evening Ledger says: "If he (Earle) is as wise as a Governor needs to be he will now prepare to sit down to deal reasonably with opponents who are not 'on the run' after all," pointing out that the "sweeping Republican victory" represents a gain of 6,000 over the vote of last November.

The Philadelphia Inquirer says the Governor "has blundered and is now upon untenable ground," adding, "if he is bluffing, if he is shuffling the hunger and misery and destruction of the unemployed around like so many cards in a poker deck, he can only lose."

The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin says the conviction cannot be escaped that the Montgomery election was a tax referendum, and indicative of a return to Republican majorities throughout the State.

State Chairman Taylor said: "If the Governor is not entirely blind to public sentiment he will now ask both Republican and Democratic leaders in the Legislature to sit down with him for a full and frank discussion of a substitute program, which he must know now the people of Pennsylvania demand."

This program would include not only taxes, but a sharp revision of revenue estimates from present tax sources and a reduction of the amounts the Governor asks in his swollen half-billion budget.

Chairman Taylor is backed in this by the figures of State Treasurer Charles A. Waters, an expert in fiscal affairs whose estimates have always proved accurate. Treasurer Waters, in a public address, said he has figures to show the Governor's estimate of revenue from existing sources is $29,000,000 below what actually will be received during the next two years. "Furthermore," said Waters, "when we are asked to double an already swollen budget, I believe that the House of Representatives and the Senate should take all the time necessary to see that a fair budget is balanced with a reasonable estimate of income. Personally I am far from convinced that the budget now before the Legislature is a fair one, and I believe the estimates of revenue from proposed taxes need very careful scrutiny."

The Montgomery county victory was all the more sweeping from the fact that while the vote was much smaller than last Fall, the Republican majorities were 6,000 larger.

HARRISBURG, Apr. 20—Representative Miles Horst, Republican, of Lebanon County, whose resolution for the investigation of unemployment relief administration in Pennsylvania has been passed by House and Senate, is receiving many letters of congratulation, not a few of them from persons on relief.

"Men and women receiving State relief are apparently just as much interested in honesty and efficiency of administration as are those who are paying the taxes," said Mr. Horst.

This was borne out during the week by representatives of Councils of the Unemployed from the hard coal regions, who charged that the best positions in the unemployment relief service were generally given to persons who do not need relief. They said, also, that relatives of local administrators, friends of politicians and others with "pull" got the well paid jobs and the unemployed, who desired work, were compelled to get along with the dole.

They charged also that at least one relief employee had been giving wild parties, spending relief moneys for rum and otherwise misconducting himself.

Early in the session Republicans asked the House Democrats for an investigation. It was not forthcoming. Finally, at the instance of the State Grange, which has made relief investigation an issue with its members, Horst put in his resolution. This time it received the support of Democratic members who had been peeved by the brusque manner of the relief administrator when they asked for jobs for "deserving Democrats."

BRISTOL RIDING CLUB PREPARES FOR SHOW

Great preparations are being made by the Bristol Riding Club for its fourth annual Spring Horse Show, which will be held on Sunday, May 5th, at the club grounds on Newport Road.

According to Dr. J. Fred Wagner, president of the club, "This affair, we hope, will be the largest and most spectacular show ever held here," said the genial physician.

"The show will be an all-day affair, with 18 classes that include events for saddle horses, five-gaited horses, hunters and jumpers, with a pony class, and as a climax we will hold a seven-furlong steeplechase race over one of the sportiest courses in the East."

"This steeplechase race course has eight difficult brush and Liverpool jumps and will have most of the best horses and riders competing in this part of the country. Last year we had the famous Leiper sisters entered, and expect them here again."

"Our show ring is nine hundred feet in circumference, with a cushioned dirt track ideal for gaited horses. Our members are proud of it. We have also four courses for jumpers with brush, snake fence, stone wall, creek, hedge, Irish bank, triple bar, and picket fence to furnish plenty of competition to the contestants," continued Dr. Wagner.

"We also have a stable adjacent to the track and ring that takes care of all visiting horses, with an addition that has solid roomy box stalls and a blacksmith's shop."

The committee in charge of this year's show are: Dr. J. Fred Wagner, C. Frank Donnelly, Dr. George Hussey, Harry B. Hanford, C. Ralph Powell and Miss Louise Lawrence.

Percy G. Ford Exhibiting Plymouth and Dodge Cars

Free rides, visible economy tests, dramatic power, speed and safety demonstrations and, above all, an unlimited supply of the genial, come-one-come-all cordiality of the "open house" are offered by Percy G. Ford in connection with a just inaugurated spring-style showing of Dodge and Plymouth automobiles.

"When I say 'open house,' I mean just that," explains Mr. Ford. "The object of Spring, a season in which the element of pleasure is added to the more businesslike aspects of motoring, is our time to open up the showroom doors and ask folks to come in and make themselves at home."

"Ours is a spring style show, of Dodge and Plymouth cars, of models that many of our friends and neighbors have not seen, of color combinations and equipment features that are new and uniquely attractive."

"But that is only part of our 'open house.' We really want people to come in as our guests, to try the famous Dodge Airglide ride, to drive with the Dodge synchromatic control, to experience the safety of perfected hydraulic brakes, to marvel at the sensational values of the low-priced Plymouth."

"Furthermore, anybody may make, with the aid of special, visible gasoline tanks, absolutely free tests of the amazing fuel economy of these cars. Anybody who wants to be thrilled, excited, entertained, is welcome, not merely to information, but to actual trials and demonstrations. That also goes for business men, who are invited to investigate the latest Dodge trucks, in styles and adaptations that will prove revelations."

"Finally, let nobody mistake this invitation as the forerunner of a sales 'drive.' It is exactly what it is being called—Dodge and Plymouth Spring 'Open House,' in which the pleasure of seeing folks is ours and from which nobody who accepts our invitation will go away disappointed."

HARRISBURG, Apr. 20—Governor Earle is being urged to give up his "reside chats." They are being taken by the public in reverse order.

The Governor in his first radio "chat" appealed to the voters to support his 22-point tax program. The public responded—but not to the Governor's liking—by sending huge delegations to Harrisburg, more than had ever been seen at the Capitol before, more indeed than the Capitol could hold, to protest against the tax bills.

A week ago he attempted to frighten the people of Montgomery county into voting for his candidates for House and Senate by threatening a cut-off of relief money. The result was a sweeping Republican victory in the Governor's home county. Now some of his friends are quietly urging him to spend his Sunday evenings in meditation.

HARRISBURG, Apr. 20—Pennsylvania Educators at Harrisburg hardly know which way to turn.

On one hand they are being told by the Governor if they do not support his tax program they run the risk of having their salaries cut off. On the other they view with alarm the Department of Public Education's calm acceptance of the Earle budget which cuts more than six millions out of educational appropriations, when the need is for five millions more.

The Governor has been repeatedly warned of his budget delinquencies. Republican State Chairman M. Harvey Taylor drew attention again the past week to the shameful manner in which schools are being neglected by the Governor.

Unless Republicans are able to push the budget up for schools the Earle program, instead of reducing the local tax load, will force new taxes on property owners to make up for the millions he proposes to cut from State subsidies now going to local districts.

BEDFORD — (INS) — Because of the reported destruction of orchards in the northwestern section of Bedford County by beavers, Game Commission officials have started a drive to limit the number of the animals in that area.

The orchards have been inundated by the waters from streams whose flow was diverted by beaver dams. Beaver were also said to be "cutting down" fruit trees in their search for timber with which to build dams.

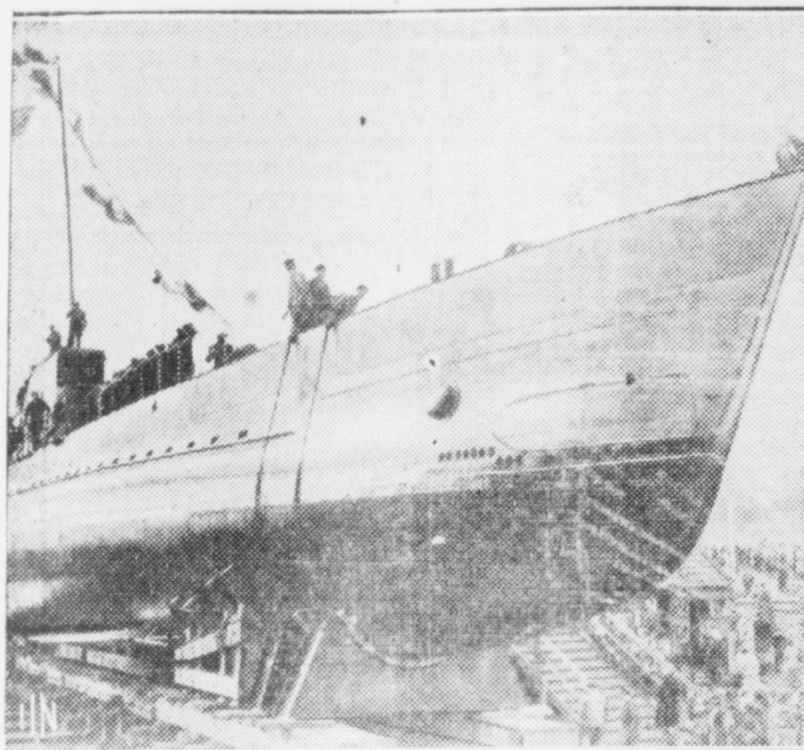

The colony of beavers was released in the streams several years ago and has grown rapidly. They are particularly abundant in the mountain tributary of the Juniata River.

Mindful of success of German subs during the World War, France adds her very latest model, above being launched at Trait, France. Besides range-finding and radio equipment, this sub has new torpedo tubes.

MOLLY'S GOING TO THE COUNTRY—HOORAY! HOORAY!

Look at These Togs for Golf, Tennis, the Beach and the Garden. Won't She Be Nifty in These Costumes?

It looks like Molly plans a vacation in the country. We know that Molly doesn't have much time to play, but from the looks of her wardrobe, she plans to make the most of her time.

She has one of the newest styles of bathing suits, with the monogrammed shorts and halter top. She has even chosen a blazer stripe beach jacket to wear over the bathing suit.

It is needless to describe her golf and tennis outfits for you. If she is as good a golfer and tennis player as she is a girl-detective, won't she have one grand time!

Aren't her garden pajamas smart! Note the slits. Leave it to Molly. Wisely she will don gloves for her garden work, because those thorns sure do raise havoc with one's hands. And just look at that stunning wide-brimmed garden hat she purchased! There'll be no tell-tale freckles on Molly's face.
